

Experienced Freelance Medical Writers looking for a challenge?

About us

Pope Woodhead and Associates provides specialist communications and consultancy services to European and International pharmaceutical and biotech companies. We have a reputation for helping our clients address strategic challenges often spanning both development (e.g. clinical development, risk management), and commercial activities. Current areas of communications work include; disease area and product communications, advisory boards/workshops, market access and value communications, external affairs, corporate communications, internal communications and training materials.

What we are looking for

We are looking for experienced communications professionals who are structured thinkers with strong medical writing and editorial skills. This is a hands-on role, delivering projects in various therapeutic areas alongside our in-house project teams.

We are looking for someone who has the ability to write for different vehicles, and to adapt writing styles for different target audiences. Candidates must have high level analytical skills and be comfortable working to tight deadlines.

In addition to a relevant scientific first degree and a strong background gained in medical communications, the ability to demonstrate attention to detail is a prerequisite.

What we offer

Pope Woodhead is a medium-sized company based in the St Ives, north of Cambridge. We have been established for over 25 years and are currently operating in some of the most rapidly moving areas of healthcare.

The successful candidate will receive a competitive rate of remuneration.

We are keen to meet enthusiastic, flexible, talented applicants for the role of Freelance Medical Writer.
